Bertram Levy is one of the foremost performers, innovators, and teachers of the Anglo concertina. His tutor "The Anglo Concertina Demystified," published in 1984, continues to be sold worldwide and is considered "without peer, the definitive instruction manual for the instrument..." As a performer, he has appeared on film soundtracks, National Public Radio, and numerous recordings. His 1986 record, "First Generation," was selected for a Grammy nomination. Levy is also a major force in the revival of Southern fiddle music. His landmark 1967 recording with the Hollow Rock String Band is included in the Smithsonian collection "American Folk Music."

His new (2011) tutor, American Fiddle Styles for the Anglo Concertina, reflects the author's long experience with Southern fiddle music and his deep understanding of the Anglo concertina.
